MANY SPEAKERS AT MEMORIAL SERVICES

President Ogilby, Richardson Wright, Professor Oosting and Others Speak

TABLET UNVEILED

Dedication of Trowbridge Memorial Begins with Unveiling of Tablet in Memory of Donor; Aquatic Exhibitions Follow.

With the unveiling of the S. Breck Parkman Trowbridge Memorial Tablet as the opening ceremony of the evening, the Trowbridge Memorial was officially opened last Saturday by the President. The speakers of the evening were Richardson Wright, noted alumnus, and Editor of "House and Garden"; Mr. R. G. Bent, contractor for the Memorial; President Ogilby; Mr. Oosting, head of the physical training department; and Mr. Clarke. Mr. Howard T. Greenley, '94, of New York City, consulting architect of the college, was originally to be the chief speaker but was called suddenly to New York. After the speeches, members of the Yale and Wesleyan swimming teams, under the direction of Messrs. Kipthuth and McCurdy, gave exhibitions of swimming, diving, and water polo, while exhibition squash racquets games were held in the courts on the top floor.

The formal exercises began with the unveiling of the tablet in memory of Mr. Trowbridge. This is a bronze bas-relief portrait of Mr. Trowbridge in profile, executed by a distinguished sculptor in New York, Thomas Hudson Jones. Mr. Jones also has designed a bust of Mr. Trowbridge which is at the American Academy in Rome.

There were present for the unveiling of the tablet, Mr. Trowbridge's sisters, Miss Kate Trowbridge and Mrs. J. W. Toumey with her husband, Professor Toumey of Yale, and a cousin of Mr. Trowbridge's, Miss Kathleen Trowbridge, together with a few of Mr. Trowbridge's intimate college friends. President Ogilby unveiled the tablet and made a brief prayer.

After this the formal dedication of the building took place on the floor of the Swimming Pool. The President made a brief address about Mr. Trowbridge. He said in part:

"We have just unveiled a tablet in memory of S. Breck Parkman Trowbridge."

LITERARY CLUB ADMITS SEVEN TO MEMBERSHIP

Professor Allen of the English Department Leads Discussion on New Books

Seven new members were elected to the Literary Club at the last meeting of that organization on Tuesday evening, October 15. The men chosen were H. Mathiason and R. Slosson from the class of 1932, and H. Munsen, H. Oxford, T. Phillip, A. Robbins, and W. Sissbower, all of 1933.

In the course of the meeting, discussion was held concerning the possible revival of "The Trinity Tablet" as a purely literary work to be published monthly. Several suggestions were made and considered, although no definite plans were made. According to W. D. Guckenbuehler, president of the club, it is probable that the suggested plan of having the publication appear annually as one large volume will be most likely to go into effect, although he states that further discussions on the matter will be held until such a revival may seem practical to the members of the club and to the college body. Such a volume, if published, would amount to a record of the year's accomplishments of the Literary Club, which has had, up to this time, no means of publishing its work.

Professor Allen, of the English department, faculty adviser to the club, led a discussion on the subject of new books, during the course of which Guckenbuehler cited several book reviews and articles from New York papers. Assignments were then given for papers to be read at the next meeting of the organization, which will be held in Jarvis 37 at half-past seven o'clock on Tuesday evening, October 29.

The "Tablet" was established April 11, 1868, and was "published every three weeks during term-time by the Students of Trinity College." It was a publication which was open to communications, and contained not only matter of a literary nature, but also news of athletics and general campus activities together with the activities of other colleges. The "Tablet" was, however, primarily a literary publication even after 1878, when it became for the time a bi-weekly. It lasted until 1904, when "The Tripod" was started as a purely news publication and took its place in that branch of campus extra-curricular activity, and the older publication has never been revived until this year.

TRINITY YIELDS TO HAVERFORD ELEVEN

Heavy Haverford Line Important Factor in Defeat of Blue and Gold Team

FINAL SCORE 19 TO 0

Visitors' Captain Goes Over Line for Three Consecutive Touchdowns; Trinity Tackling Weak; Britton Injured.

In the third game on the football schedule, Trinity was defeated by a powerful Haverford team last Saturday, at Trinity Field, by a 19 to 0 score. Haverford made use of their decided weight advantage to concentrate their attack on Trinity's light but scrappy line, which did not hold up under the crushing charges of the Black and Red eleven. Captain Morris, 215-pound fullback of the visiting team, was a decided factor in wearing down the Trinity eleven. Time and again when his team needed a few yards for a first down he made the required gain. He scored all of Haverford's points, besides passing, kicking, and backing up the line on the defense in an almost faultless way. He tackled hard, and was hard to tackle when he had the ball. Hoganaur, another heavy back, and Dothard, contributed several long runs which kept Trinity on the defense throughout the first three quarters.

Disco ran back Morris' kick-off to the 25-yard line. Phippen punted. Dothard ran back the kick to the 35-yard line. Morris made 30 yards on a fake kick. Two first downs brought the ball to Trinity's 15-yard line. Disco recovered Dothard's fumble and stopped Haverford's threat to score. Haverford threatened to score again when Morris missed a field goal. Slossberg made a first down on his own 33-yard line. Phippen's punt was run back 40 yards by Dothard to Trinity's 45-yard line. Morris punted outside on Trinity's 8-yard line. Phippen returned the punt. Trinity got a 15-yard penalty. Morris made first down on three plays. The quarter ended with the ball on Trinity's 8-yard line.

Soon after the opening of the second quarter, Phippen knocked down a pass in the end zone, and then punted out of danger. Dothard paved the way for Haverford's first touchdown by a 30-yard gain on a play through the left side of Trinity's line. Morris plowed over for a touchdown, and then added the extra point.

Trinity made three first downs in a row, bringing the ball into Haverford's territory. The Blue and Gold was stopped on the visitors' 29-yard line when Hoganaur intercepted a pass.

Dothard, Hoganaur, and Cadabury made long gains. Morris brought the ball to Trinity's 3-yard line on an off-tackle play. Haverford was prevented from scoring when Crawford caught a pass outside the end zone.

Haverford scored their second touchdown after a 48-yard march. Dothard made 15 yards on a delayed buck. Cadabury made 8 yards around end. Morris made another first down on Trinity's 16-yard line. Dothard and Hoganaur made 14 yards on two plays. Morris crashed through the left side of Trinity's line for a touchdown. The attempt for point failed.

A fumble by Britton on Trinity's 7-yard line, which was recovered by Cadabury, paved the way for Haverford's last touchdown, Morris going over once again on a line buck.

STRONG HAMILTON ELEVEN MEETS BLUE AND GOLD THIS SATURDAY

FELLOWSHIP AWARDED TO TRINITY GRADUATE

Alfred L. Peiker, '25, Receives Sterry-Hunt Fellowship; Much-Prized Award

As a climax to the end of his remarkable work in chemistry at the graduate school of chemistry at McGill University, Alfred L. Peiker, of the class of 1925, has been awarded the Sterry-Hunt Fellowship, it was announced recently by Professor V. K. Kriebel, head of the chemistry department. Mr. Peiker had the honor of being the highest man in his grade for physical chemistry, and submitted the best examination paper for that course; the Sterry-Hunt Fellowship is, according to Professor Kriebel, the most prized fellowship in the McGill graduate school, and, he says, its winning by Mr. Peiker has reflected much honor on the Trinity chemistry department.

Mr. Peiker while in college was prominent in campus activities, being a member of the College Senate and of the Medusa Society; he also starred on the basketball team and played football. He has already completed his examinations for the Ph.D. degree, and is at present working to finish his thesis.

Professor Evald L. Skau, Assistant Professor of Chemistry, has been recently engaged in the Jarvis Chemical Laboratories during the summer in research work in cooperation with Dr. Irving Cowperthwaite of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, New York. The particular type of work being conducted required the purification of several compounds, and Professor Skau, who is a specialist in this field, developed a number of new methods during the tenure of a National Research Fellowship at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1926 to 1928. The compounds to be purified required the use of liquid air and the work necessitated temperatures as low as 200 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, or about 100 degrees below the temperature of dry ice.

In aiding Professor Skau, Harry F. Meier, '28, assistant in the chemistry department, and Louis F. Rowe, '30, have been working on research problems under his direction during the summer months.

Hamilton Has Compiled Envious Record So Far this Season; Held Amherst 21-6

TRINITY IMPROVING

Team Enters Game with Even Chance of Victory; Same Lineup to Start Game as Began Against Haverford

Playing its fourth game of the season, the college eleven will meet the powerful Hamilton team on Trinity Field this Saturday. Under "Bill" Galvin's direction, the Blue and Gold squad has been steadily improving, and even though they were beaten, they made a very creditable showing against the fast and heavy Haverford team.

Trinity will meet a strong veteran team which has compiled a rather enviable record so far this season. In the opening game, Hamilton was held to a scoreless tie by Alford, and the following Saturday their team showed great improvement when they won a hard-fought victory over the strong Clarkson Tech eleven by a 7-0 score. Rochester, who had previously beaten Wesleyan was defeated by a 13-6 score. Last Saturday, Hamilton held the powerful Amherst team to a 21-6 score; in all their games, Hamilton's best method of attack has been a well-conceived forward passing game.

Seven members of last year's highly successful team, which defeated the Blue and Gold by a 46-0 score, will start Saturday's game; Captain "Tubby" Carpenter and Conger will be at the guard positions. Westberg, a 200-pounder, and Allen, are powers of strength at the tackle positions, playing a consistently strong game. Jarret has proved to be a serious scoring threat because of his ability to receive forward passes; he also plays a strong defensive game at end.

In the backfield, Chatfield and Campbell, flashy backs of last year's eleven, will be seriously missed. However, three lettermen are still available. "Risky" Morris, the diminutive quarterback, who will be remembered by Trinity students as Hamilton's high-scoring ace in the Hamilton-Trinity basketball game last season, will have to be closely watched Saturday.

IN MEMORIAM.

As Mr. Oosting hit the water of the new swimming pool, and the Yale and Wesleyan swimmers raced up and down its length, a thing which had for a long time been merely a hope and a prayer fully blossomed into reality for the college. If Mr. Trowbridge heard the cheers—as we are sure he did—perhaps he was repaid in part for the magnificent gift which he bequeathed to his alma mater, a gift which will live through many years in the memory of one of her greatest sons.

For, needless to say, the addition of this new gymnasium unit means more than we can express by any amount of cheering or speech; it means the realization in the minds of the alumni, the president, and the faculty, of years of expectancy and labor. It means opportunity for the students of Trinity College for years to come to more fully round out their education and to enjoy themselves in doing so. And so it was that we joined with Mr. Ogilby in paying our respects to the memory of Mr. Trowbridge, not only during the unveiling of his memorial plaque, but also in our cheering after the dedicatory speech and throughout the rest of the evening.

It is hard to imagine a gift that would have been more far reaching in its benefits to the college. With its pool, squash racquets courts, and full complement of locker rooms, the new unit stands as one of the most fully equipped buildings—certainly as the most beautiful—in the country. We are certain that, as Mr. Ogilby said, we shall continue to remember Mr. Trowbridge, his works and his generosity, every time we step inside his memorial.

SENIORES PRIORES.

Inasmuch as Trinity College has become a venerable institution, amassing through a history of over a hundred years of vigorous life innumerable traditions, it is quite fitting that a word should be said in reference to the general let-down of their continuance. Traditions are characteristic of institutions hallowed by time and associations. Trinity has been especially happy in selection of the traditions to be continued and has discarded those which seemed to be absurd and meaningless.

One of the most notable traditions is the one which concerns the respect of lower classmen toward the members of the upper class or classes. In keeping with this, the seating arrangement in chapel recognizes the suitability of having the Seniors placed in the highest seat of honor and the lower classmen in tiers below the Seniors. As it were, one ascends in respect as he comes nearer his goal of graduation. In keeping with this seating plan it has always been the custom for the Seniors to precede all other classmen in leaving the chapel, the Freshmen being the last to go out. For some reason or for no reason at all, this tradition seems to have been gradually given up. It is the general opinion of all upper classmen that it of all others should be continued. Not only does the leaving of chapel seem much less like the close of a vaudeville performance, but also avoids the feeling of confusion which should not attend religious services.

In all probability all that is necessary to rectify this laxity in the keeping of one of Trinity's oldest traditions is to bring it to the attention of the student body. It is not possible for one to carry on the tradition, but with the true Trinity spirit of unity and coöperation, again will the chapel custom of seniores priores be carefully carried out and handed down to posterity.

THE HAVERFORD GAME.

The rather sad fact that Haverford beat us last Saturday is entirely balanced by the equally sad fact that our friends from down the river were beaten by Bowdoin on the same day and by the same score. And so, a thing which we had previously been repeating over and over to ourselves as a sort of charm is now become a certainty—Wesleyan has about as much chance with us on the second of November as Vermont had with Yale a little over a week ago.

It was obvious to the most unenlightened spectator on Saturday that the team was playing against an eleven which had a great deal of weight in its favor. With their 211-pound fullback and their 265-pounds of eighteen-year-old tackle (and heaven help the opposition when he grows up), Haverford had no earthly right to beat us by so small a score. And yet the line held repeatedly at crucial points, and, by all rights, the Slossberg-Phippen combination should have scored a touchdown in the last quarter. To sum up: Bowdoin may be good, but Haverford is much better; our friends from down the river (that's a hard phrase to get rid of), may draw their own conclusions.

BOOK REVIEW

MAMBA'S DAUGHTERS, by Du Boise Heyward, published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York.

"Yes, Gilly would forget that she had saved his life once. He'd only remember that she had strangled him and left him with his eyes full of black water."

Hagar, Mamba's giant daughter, was thinking this after she had committed murder. It is the realism which the author depicts in the parts of the novel dealing with the black belt that makes the book worth reading. The character studies of the Negroes are vivid and appealing; giving the feeling of pathos, childish happiness, and barbarism which are displayed by these people.

The author of "Porgy" interprets the life of the Negro as being essentially tragic, especially those who are pushed back and forth from barbarism to civilization, drifting like the tide which here and there leaves upon the sand some object.

Lissa, from the low tide of Charleston, rose triumphantly to the position of a star in New York. It was hers, a mulatto's voice, that floated to the heights of the Metropolitan. Lissa received the plaudits of the grand horseshoe.

"Mamba's Daughters" is the story of three generations: Mamba, Hagar, daughter of Mamba, and Lissa, daughter of Hagar. It was the struggle of Mamba against her environment, fighting bravely for her children and working for Lissa's happiness that makes the book so appealing.

The vividness of the description is shown in the following passage: "Black ooze squirted between her toes and covered her feet. * * * But presently she became aware of the reflection of an object that projected over her shoulder and looked down into the water as she was doing. * * * Now her anger rose, and she splashed heavily through the water, shattering and dispersing its reflections." This pertains to Hagar while, "Mamba stood before them recreated in her own conception of the ideal toward which she had been striving. In some strange manner she seemed to dominate the room."

The white people in the novel are essential to the theme of the story but it is the penetrating character of Mamba and the rhythmic shadows of the colored people against a stormy sky that gives the book its literary qualities.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NEWS

Well, we certainly cut gaps into "The Polytech Reporter." Here are some choice cuttings from the Fraction Column:

"Simple Sam says—'Don't forget, dear Frosh, that before a man is pledged, the fraternity brothers slap him on the back, but after he is pledged they don't slap him so high.'"

The demure young bride, a trifle pale, her lips set in a tremulous smile, slowly stepped down the long church aisle, clinging to the arm of her father.

As she reached the low platform before the altar, her slippered foot brushed a potted flower, upsetting it. She looked at the spilled dirt gravely, and then raised her soft, childlike eyes to the sedate face of the old minister.

"That's a hell of a place to park a lily," she said.

Rev. Herbert Donovan Speaks About Liberia

Tracing the history of the country from the time of its establishment by the United States as a refuge for Negroes in 1822 up to its present condition, the Reverend Herbert Donovan, Episcopalian missionary to Liberia, gave a short talk on the possibilities and resources of the country in chapel last Wednesday, stressing especially the need for missionary aid.

"The common conception of an African missionary," said Dr. Donovan, "is a man with a long flowing beard who addresses a congregation of upwards of two black men. How surprised they would be if they saw my congregation in Liberia, sometimes numbering almost three thousand people" Dr. Donovan went on to say that Liberia is at present the only country in the world where colored people rule themselves with their own legislatures, courts, etc., telling how it obtained its freedom in 1847.

In appealing for help in his missionary work, Dr. Donovan gave a particularly striking illustration of the need for such spiritual assistance, telling how a cannibal savage chieftain from the interior of the country came to him asking for "a God-man to teach his people how to live like the black men on the coast." "Such occurrences as that," said Dr. Donovan in closing, "show the quality of the work that is being done in Africa, and the crying need of more good work of the same sort."

bridge, whose name this building bears. This tablet was given by Mrs. Trowbridge and it stands facing the entrance of this building in the expectation that the young men coming through the portals will get something of the spirit of this son of Trinity.

"Mr. Trowbridge was a distinguished architect, an enthusiastic sportsman, a cultured gentleman, and a loyal alumnus of this College. The buildings erected by his firm in New York City, in Pittsburgh and elsewhere stand as witness of his ability. It is most fitting that this building on the Trinity College Campus should bear his name, for he worked out the original scheme of a Swimming Pool with Squash Racquet Courts above. Indeed I was in conference with him on this building on the last day he spent in his office before his death. We were then discussing the location of the building which we had first planned to put near the old Gymnasium. He, fearing that such a location would interfere with the beauty of the new Chapel now being designed, made a great pencil cross on the suggested location to erase it and then putting his finger on this part of the Campus said, 'Put the Gymnasium here.' We have put it here and we are glad to think of it as a worthy memorial to him.

"Mr. Trowbridge was proud of being a Trinity man. He never lost an opportunity to praise his college and expressed more than once his feeling that it was his education as a Bachelor of Arts of Trinity that gave him the capacity to coördinate the work of technical experts into a finished building.

"He was a man of broad culture and many interests. He belonged to a club called 'The Digressionists,' a club of professional men who each year created some work of art outside their chosen field. I have in my house a little piece of statuary representing Robin Hood teaching his little son to shoot with a bow and arrow. Mr. Trowbridge presented this to my son Peter: it has real charm.

"It is my hope that the young men who use this building will get from it something of the spirit of Breck Trowbridge and all that he stood for."

The President then called upon every one to rise while he pronounced a formal sentence of dedication of the building. He then introduced Richardson Wright as a representative of the Alumni, recently elected an Alumnus Trustee.

NEW CHAPEL SUBJECT OF ATHENAEUM CLUB DEBATE

"Money for New Chapel Could be Used Better Elsewhere" is Subject

At the regular weekly meeting of the Athenaeum Society on Monday evening, October 14, the first debate of the year was held upon the question, "Resolved, That the Money which is to be spent on the New Chapel May Better be Spent Elsewhere on Campus." The affirmative of the question was upheld by Messrs. Waterman, '31, and McKee, '32, whereas the negative was supported by Messrs. Regnier, '30, and Campbell, '32.

The affirmative declared that the money to be used in the erection of the proposed chapel could be more wisely spent in building a new chemical laboratory. Emphasizing the fact that the pre-medical course in Trinity is nationally recognized as one of the foremost in the country and claiming that the present science buildings and their equipment are inadequate to meet the demands of the ever-increasing student body, they furthermore asserted that the present chapel is adequate in fulfilling the spiritual needs of the college. In like manner they contended that the need for a new dormitory and an improved gymnasium is far more imperative than that of a new chapel, although the latter would add to the beauty and the spiritual life of the college.

Stating that religion has remained for centuries, and still is the most important factor of man's existence, the negative continued that the religious needs of a young man are greatest during the unsettled era of college life. It was stressed that the spiritual needs of college men are supplied by the chapel services, which in themselves are part of a liberal education. The inadequate seating capacity of the present chapel was supported by references to the crowded Wednesday services and the necessity of holding the annual Baccalaureate service outside of the college proper. Granting that all the new buildings proposed by their opponents were badly needed at Trinity, the negative concluded by saying that the religious life of a college is of primary importance, and that were it to degenerate because of the lack of an adequate chapel, a serious reflection would be cast upon our trustees.

Following the debate, the jury, which was composed of Messrs. Cookson, '31, Funston, '32, and Munchinger, '32, rendered a decision in favor of the negative team. Constructive criticisms were presented by the members present to the debaters on both teams. It was later resolved that the society be split into two rival debating factions, from which two men from each faction will oppose one another in future debates. At the conclusion of all other business, the meeting adjourned.

FRESHMAN TEAM LOSES TO BRIDGEPORT SCHOOL

With Bockwinkel, star line-plunger of the Blue and Gold Freshmen, on the injured list, the 1933 football team was decisively defeated last Saturday at Bridgeport by the Warren Harding High School eleven, last year's state champions. The Freshman backfield line-up contained only one regular back, the other three men being shifted from the line by Coach Harry Herbert.

The Harding team was practically the same group that won the championship last year; their plays worked smoothly, and their interference was exceptionally good, while their line averaged twenty pounds heavier to a man. Pivarnik, all-state center and captain of the Harding High team, was the individual star of the game. Chalko, Schrieber, and Doolin also played well for the opponents, while T. Wadlow starred for the Freshmen.

JUNIORS ELECT McCOOK TO CLASS PRESIDENCY

In the elections of the Class of 1931 held last Thursday noon in the Public Speaking Room, Daniel B. McCook was elected class president to succeed Julian Glynn; John Gooding was elected to the office of vice-president, and C. W. Laubin was re-elected secretary-treasurer by unanimous vote of the class. Due to the lateness in the payment of class dues and assessments, the meeting had been postponed from the week previous in order to allow those ineligible because of non-payment of dues to become eligible for offices and for voting.

H. Wadlow and Coles showed up well for Trinity in the line.

After the first quarter, the Harding coach used his reserves steadily, and the Freshmen, with only sixteen taking the trip, were consequently badly hammered by the offense. During the second quarter, Paige, Freshman fullback, tore a ligament in his ankle, and will be out for the rest of the season.

The lineup follows:

Further elections for Chairman of the Junior Prom Committee resulted in the election of L. L. Scaife to that office; the date of the prom has not as yet been decided upon. In the elections for officers of "The Ivy", McCook was chosen Editor-in-chief, while C. E. Jacobson was made Business Manager. The meeting adjourned with a vote of commendation for Laubin's excellent work in the position of treasurer of the class during the past year.

McCook is Managing Editor of "The Tripod", and is a member of the Sophomore Dining Club; he played junior varsity football during his freshman year, and was a member of the varsity squad last fall and served on the sophomore hop committee. Gooding also played junior varsity football and was on the varsity squad last fall, as well as playing for two years as a regular on the baseball squad and on the jayvee basketball team; he is a member of the Sophomore Dining Club and Kappa Beta Phi, and served on the sophomore hop committee last year. Laubin has held various previous offices, and is president of the Gun Club.

Scaife is a senior member of The Jesters, and is also a member of the Sophomore Dining Club, of which he was chairman last year; he also served on the sophomore committee. Jacobson is a member of the Literary Club and was Manager of Debating.

PRESIDENT TALKS WITH SENATE ON MEMORIAL

Announces that Unit Will Not be Opened Until Following Monday

At the last meeting of the Senate on Thursday night, President Ogilby spoke of the arrangements to be made for the ceremonies at the dedication of the Trowbridge Memorial swimming pool stating that the ushers for that evening were to be the members of the Senate. Badges were to be given to Cooper, president of the Senate, for distribution to the Senate for that occasion. The members were to report at 7.15 p. m. before the dedication, and Mrs. Trowbridge was to be ushered to the seat of honor on the observation platform. It was pointed out that the audience would have to be limited to Trinity men; alumni, students and faculty and that, after the swimming exhibitions by visiting Yale and Wesleyan teams games of squash racquets were to follow.

An announcement of prime interest to the undergraduates was made by President Ogilby. Due to the late completion of the pool, and consequent retarding of planning and installation of accessories, it will not be opened to the students till October 28.

In reference to the important item of the undergraduate finances there was no definite action. There can be no definite statement until all reports are in and a great deal of work done in balancing the books. Under this head an amendment to the Constitution of the Senate was proposed to the effect that the out-going Senate appoint or choose the Treasurer of the Senate Finance Committee for the ensuing year. This proposal will be brought before the student body at its next meeting for consideration and vote. It is hoped that this will allow a continuity in the business of the finances, and make it easier for the new treasurer by acquainting him with his intricate job before he actually takes office. Also, in the future, there can be no excuse for detaining necessary business because of lack of important records.

A letter from Ellis, last year's president of the Senate finance committee, was read by MacInnes explaining the apportionment of the money received from the treasurer and income from class dues.

Fred Cooper, manager of the Union, reported that that important unit in student life is doing very well and is even showing a profit, making the usual appropriation from the Senate unnecessary for the first half of this college year.

TRINITY YIELDS TO HAVERFORD ELEVEN.

Trinity's only offensive threat came in the last quarter. Phippen got the Blue and Gold out of a bad hole when he punted from behind his own goal line. Soon after that, Trinity got the ball on downs on their own 33-yard line. Slossberg made 3 yards on a delayed buck; a lateral pass, Slossberg to Knurek, was good for 8 yards and a first down. Slossberg cut through the center of the line for 8 more yards. In three plays Knurek and Slossberg made two first downs and brought the ball to Haverford's 40-yard line. After three unsuccessful tries at the line, Phippen punted outside on Haverford's 8-yard line. Geiger smeared Hoganaur. Morris' punt was partially blocked, and Knurek got the ball on the visitors' 22-yard line. Haverford held for downs when a poor pass from center did not give Phippen a chance to get off a dropkick.

Trinity threatened again when a 40-yard pass from Knurek to Nye gave Trinity first down on Haverford's 7-yard line. Trinity failed to score when Phippen caught a pass outside the end zone, and Haverford was given the ball on their 20-yard line.

Slossberg starred for Trinity, making most of their gains. Britton played well on the defense until he was injured in the second half, pulling down many Haverford ball-carriers before they got off for long runs. Disco's play was a decided improvement over his work against Williams and Worcester Tech. He tackled well and his work on the defense was especially conspicuous in the third quarter.

Weinstein and Durand played well in the line throughout the game. Kalasinsky showed improved form when he was sent in during the last quarter. He smeared several Haverford plays and opened wide holes on the offense.

Coach Galvin will have to work hard this week to improve the tackling and blocking of the entire team and the work of the ends, especially in going down under kicks.

Haverford made fifteen first downs to Trinity's nine.

The summary follows:

Haverford		Trinity
Cann	LE	Nye
Fields	LT	Cooper

FALL TRACK MEET HELD IN SPITE OF WEATHER

Coach Oosting Calls all Cinder
Events at Four O'clock;
Wright Stars

On Friday, October 18, Coach Oosting held the first part of his annual fall track meet. Because of the cold weather and the shortness of the time, only the running events were held. The object of the meeting was to bring out new material and to give the men experience in track competition.

No very fast time for any of the events was made because of the unusually cold weather which handicapped the men considerably. Several were hampered by heavy colds.

The 100-yard dash was run off in three heats. The men who ran in the first heat were: Bartlewski, Bjorkman, Gibson, Phillips, Robbins, Tracy, and Smart. Gibson placed a very easy first, followed by Tracy, then Bartlewski. In the second heat were: Dean, Healy, Peterson, Peiss, Richardson, and Tashjian. Tashjian led, with Healy second and Peterson third. The third heat was composed of Anderson, Carlson, Dice, Hubinger, Welivar, and Wright. Wright came in first, Welivar second, and Anderson third.

A final was run off with the three winners of each heat competing. Tashjian did not run because he was entered in another event. Gibson came in an easy first again, Wright second, and Welivar a close third.

In the 220 were: Merrit, Smythe, Steeves, Baldwin, Malm, Futhanger, and Tracy. Tracy easily out-distanced the entire field, while Smythe came in second, with Baldwin third.

Only four men were entered for the 440. They were: Oxford, Christenson, Clark, and Tashjian. Oxford placed first, with Clark and Tashjian second and third, respectively.

Sherman, Holmes, Birch, and Perry entered the mile run. Birch came from behind to place first, while Holmes came in second, and Sherman third.

The two-mile event went very slowly, the effects of the weather showing plainly in the running of the men. Of the four entered: Carson, Carlton, H. D. Doolittle, and White, Carlton came in first, Carson second, and White third.

This coming Friday, Coach Oosting intends to hold the annual cross-country run. This is an inter-fraternity competition, and should bring out a large group of aspirants who covet the cup donated by Lyman Ogilby, President Ogilby's son.
